When I was in college, I made the same decision as everyone else. I got the best grade a big exam that I had ever achieved, so I chose the best course accordingly. But I never asked myself “Am I really interested in this major?” Although I have studied for this field since senior high school, I still couldn’t have certainly told you that this was my real interest.

My name is XIE ZONG RONG, I’m 22 years old. I have a happy and warm family that maybe the envy of others. This kind of background can’t be valued in terms of money, but rather it is of a spiritual value. Even if my parents can’t give us resources like the child of Bill Gates’ or Warren Buffett’s, they have stable work, strive their hardest to give their time, and never give up when facing our problems. The most important thing is they both have the same attitude on family values. Their selfless contribution, my personality to develop and grow positively and optimistically.

I like to make plans, regardless whether it be simple or complicated. I always choose to make a plan first. I’m afraid that I’ll miss something important or ignore crucial factors and that may lead me to failure. When it came to my school life, it was simple and regular, I participated in some clubs for first two years and the rest of time I focused on my homework and the projects.

Compared to the average student in college, for me seemed like my four years in college was a little mundane, so I attribute this result to few reasons. First of all, I had to go to military for four months and there had two choices I could select. I chose the option for my duty to be fulfilled over four years of college. It took two of my summer vacations to execute my obligation. I had to sacrifice my time with friends and couldn’t be part of the events that were held in college. After I finished four months training, all the activities were finished, Second, I had a girlfriend at the end of my second year in college. Originally, I thought I was such a lucky person to meet my Miss Right so quickly. Now, I have to make up for what I missed before and try harder. I need to be efficient with time in my daily life and finishing everything step by step. I’m not just want to be a dreamer, I also want to be a doer.

In this self-introduction, I didn't want to exaggerate or excessively promote myself. I know that I must face up to the fact that I still have a lot of works to do. And I know that even if I pass the examination, there will still be many challenges ahead and a lot of knowledges to gain when I start my journey in graduate school. I look for to accepting the challenge.
